Congressman Arlan Stangeland
House Office Building
Washington D.C.

Dear Arlan:

The television special this week on the work of Raoul Wallenberg was a great illustration of the impact that one person can really have on the world. It is unfortunate that he fell into the hands of the Russians, and is apparently still in a prison cell in the Soviet Union. He has been made an American citizen. What is the Congress doing to apply pressure on the Soviet Union to return this friend of the free world to freedom? If the President is going to meet with the head of the Soviet Union, it should be one of the first items on the agenda. . .return Raoul Wallenberg.

I would appreciate knowing what is being done by your office and the Congress to bring this about. I shall look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely yours,

Clifford Stiles, M.D.
